Who we are

Coffey is an international professional services firm.

We have more than 50 years' experience working in the fields of international development, geotechnical engineering, and environmental and project management.

Since 2016, Coffey has been part of the Tetra Tech group of companies, with more than 16,000 associates and colleagues across 400 offices globally.

Tetra Tech's international development services group now includes organisations such as Management Systems International (MSI) and Coffey International Development in Australia and the United Kingdom.

The Asia Pacific international development team is based in Adelaide, Australia. Coffey also has an international development team based in London, UK.

For four decades, Coffey's international development teams have devised solutions to development challenges. We work with clients in both government and the public and private sectors to achieve effective and sustainable outcomes.
