

TOTAL AUSTRALIAN OFFICIAL DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE $4 BILLION

Building a stronger Indo-Pacific and tackling poverty is in Australia's interest, and in the interests of our region. Healthy, educated and well-governed communities with affordable infrastructure are more resilient to shocks, including natural disasters. They are also better able to achieve sustainable economic growth.

Australia's development partners are diverse in size, population and income level. Our focus is our region. Australia is responding to the long-term and unique challenges our partners face. In recognition of the significant infrastructure needs in the region, and the important role that infrastructure plays in enabling growth, Australia will launch the Australian Infrastructure Financing Facility for the Pacific. The Facility will transform Australia's development assistance and be a cornerstone of our sustainable, principles-based infrastructure investments in the Pacific and Timor-Leste. It will allow Australia to work with partner governments and the private sector to address critical infrastructure gaps while avoiding unsustainable debt.

Our development program is stronger and more diverse when we engage with Australian and international organisations. We do this through our trusted non-government partnerships, our community grants scheme, our volunteers program and our targeted investments through multilateral institutions and global funds.

Pacific $1.4b

We will take our partnership with the Pacific to a new level. In 2019–20, we will provide a record $1.4 billion in development assistance. We will work with governments and regional institutions on health and education programs, and on improving the environment for businesses and economic growth.

We are delivering a new chapter in our relationship with the Pacific:

- » the $2 billion Australian Infrastructure Financing Facility for the Pacific will work with partner governments and the private sector to close critical infrastructure gaps. It will include $500 million in grants
- » the Pacific Labour Scheme, $70 million over four years, will expand to all Pacific island countries
- » the Office of the Pacific will enhance coordination across the Australian government and consultation within the region
- » educational and people-to-people links will be strengthened with new secondary school scholarships, $66 million over three years, and more scholarships for vocational education and training
- » the new Australia-Pacific Sports Linkages Program, $12 million over 4 years, will strengthen sporting ties, build safe communities and increase the participation of women and girls in sport
- » across all our programs, we will continue to support equality for women and girls, including through Pacific Women Shaping Pacific Development.

$23m (2019–20 TO 2024–25)

Southeast and East Asia $1b

Australia supports a Southeast Asia that is stable, prosperous and resilient, and that benefits from a rules-based order. We will work to reduce poverty, address inequality, support free and unencumbered trade and advance human rights. We will continue to support efforts on transnational challenges such as: reducing crime and people smuggling; strengthening counter terrorism cooperation; and maritime security capacity building.

Our flagship counter-trafficking and safe migration investments will strengthen regional responses to these issues, while supporting human rights of vulnerable people.

$14.2m (2018–19 TO 2021–22)

Humanitarian Assistance $450m

Australia's humanitarian assistance helps to strengthen resilience and mitigate the impact of disasters and humanitarian crises. Humanitarian crises reverse hard-won development gains, increase poverty and can result in instability that lasts for decades. Investing in disaster risk reduction is the most effective way to reduce the impact of a crisis, save lives and limit the economic costs of a disaster.
