INTRODUCTION

The Australia-India Council (AIC) was established on 21 May 1992, in response to a recommendation by the Senate Standing Committee on Foreign Affairs, Defence and Trade, following an inquiry into Australia's relations with India.

The Council's purpose is to broaden the relationship between Australia and India by encouraging and supporting contacts and increasing levels of knowledge and understanding between the peoples and institutions of the two countries. The Council initiates or supports a range of activities designed to promote a greater awareness of Australia in India and a greater awareness of India in Australia, including visits and exchanges between the two countries, development of institutional links, and support of studies in each country of the other. The Council offers support, in the form of funding, for projects likely to contribute to the development of the relationship, within the context of AIC objectives and guidelines.

By initiating and supporting a range of activities, the Council has played a recognised and respected role in promoting the relationship between Australia and India. It has informed and educated Indians about Australia, and it has informed persons already interested in the bilateral relationship about its development. It has furthered the Government's foreign policy and trade objectives and added value to Australia-India relations.

The Council comprises a board of members with interests in the relationship, drawn from a cross-section of the Australian community. Mr Darren Gribble was appointed as the Chairman of the Council in 2005.

The Council is supported by a secretariat located in the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade in Canberra and in New Delhi. The Australian High Commission in New Delhi also promotes the Council's activities in India.

CHAIRMAN'S MESSAGE

As Chairman, I am pleased to report that the Australia-India Council initiated and funded a range of activities during 2006-07 that have substantially contributed to making Australia better known and understood in India, and India better known and understood in Australia.

This is due in no small part to the quality of the Council's members, all of whom have outstanding expertise in their respective professions and are committed to strengthening the Australia-India relationship. The capabilities of the Board Members correspond to the core program areas of the Council's work, and Australia has benefited from the many projects and programs that Council Members have personally initiated.

The Council reserves a majority of its annual budget for a public grants program, which continues to bring exciting new partners and activities to the Council. The Board goes to considerable lengths to ensure fairness and consistency in its funding decisions, which is an essential consideration when dealing with public funding.

The Activities section of this report provides details of specific Council-supported projects during 2006-07. The AIC sought and achieved a balance between projects initiated by the Council and those initiated by others; between large and small projects; and between projects covering different aspects of the Australia-India relationship.

The Council's work is also dependent on a range of key stakeholder organisations in both Australia and India. Many of the Council's outstanding partner organisations are mentioned in the Activities section of this report, and I would like to gratefully acknowledge the contribution of each. These partners are crucial to the identification, design, and implementation of some of the Council's most successful activities.

The Council continues to work closely with the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade, which provides secretariat services and other support to the Council, to ensure that the AIC's activities support the Australian Government's broader engagement with India. The Council also works closely with the Australian High Commission in New Delhi, and is very appreciative of the contribution of the High Commissioner and his staff to the Council's work.

I believe 2006-07 was another outstanding year for the AIC, and I would like to thank all my colleagues on the Council. I would also like to thank the secretariat, and in particular Carol Robertson, who departed the AIC after more than five very successful years as its Director.

BOARD MEMBERS

The Order-in-Council establishing the Australia-India Council provides that the Council's board comprises of a Chairman and not fewer than four, nor more than fourteen, other members. ## MISSION STATEMENT, FUNCTIONS AND OBJECTIVES

The Australia-India Council advances Australia's interests concerning India by initiating and supporting activities designed to enhance awareness and understanding between the peoples and institutions of Australia and India.

Functions of the Australia-India Council

The functions of the Australia-India Council (AIC) are to make recommendations to the Australian Government, through the Minister for Foreign Affairs, for the broadening and deepening of the relationship between Australia and India, with particular emphasis on:

- raising awareness of Australia in India, and of India in Australia;
- promoting visits and exchanges between the two countries of individuals and groups for the purpose of broadening relations in a number of areas, including the arts, commerce, education, the news media, science and technology, and sport;
- encouraging the development of Australia-India institutional links between universities, museums, libraries, technical colleges, research institutes, professional bodies and appropriate non-government organisations; and
- supporting Australian studies in India, and Indian studies in Australia.

Australia-India Council Funding and Objectives

In carrying out these functions, the AIC provides funding for innovative proposals which will, in the Council's assessment, advance the Council's objectives, which are:

- to initiate and support, among influential persons and groups in Australia and India, activities that encourage a greater interest in the development of relations between the two countries, including economic relations;
- to initiate and support exchanges that demonstrate to Indians Australian excellence in the arts, commerce, education, the news media, science and technology, and sport, and that give Indians an opportunity to learn more about the nature of Australian society;
- to encourage Australians to take a greater interest in developments in India, by supporting activities that increase the level and quality of public awareness, and broaden community knowledge and understanding, of India in Australia;
- to initiate, monitor and publicise important developments in the various fields of Australia-India relations;
- to seek targeted, effective publicity for the Council's activities as a means of encouraging wider public appreciation of and support for the Council's role; and
- to seek community involvement in and private sector support for the Council's activities.

ACTIVITIES

The Australia-India Council receives its program funding from the Australian Government in the form of the annual grant-in-trust administered by the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade. The Council received new program funding in 2006-2007 of $742,000.

During 2006-2007 the AIC spent $627,129.21 on a range of projects either initiated by the Council, or initiated by individuals or organisations who sought and obtained funding under the Council's competitive funding application process.

The Council considered 57 applications for funding during 2006-2007 and provided funding for 29 of the projects represented by these applications. The amounts provided for specific projects ranged from $307.27 to $135,000.

Funding Application Process

The Australia-India Council's competitive funding application process enables the initiative and enthusiasm of a wide range of individuals and organisations to be encouraged and supported in furthering the Council's objectives of broadening and deepening the Australia-India relationship. The funding application process has also helped to identify areas worthy of more systematic or long-term Council involvement.

The AIC funding application process is designed to provide seed funding for innovative projects that will continue to advance the aims and objectives of the Council beyond the term of Council funding, providing significant continuing benefits from what is often a modest initial outlay.

All applications are made using standard documents and are assessed by a standard appraisal procedure, helping to ensure consistency and equity in Council funding decisions.

The Council attaches a number of conditions to its funding, including that all applications be assessed against the following guidelines:

- Individuals or organisations applying for funding should have a substantial record of achievement in the proposed field of activity;
- The activity should be a worthwhile initiative that will contribute to the AIC's objectives of promoting a broader and deeper relationship between Australia and India;
- The activity should have clearly defined objectives consistent with the AIC's objectives;

- Where possible, support requested from the AIC should constitute seed funding to encourage financial assistance from other sources, including corporate sponsors. The AIC may decide to award funding conditional on supplementary funds being raised from other sources;
- Preference will be given to activities that offer prospects of future independent activity as a result of initial AIC funding;
- Where an activity for which AIC support is sought is dependent upon the support of other organisations either in Australia or in India, evidence of the willingness of each such organisation to provide support, either financially or in kind, should be provided. In-kind support may include accommodation and other services provided without charge in either country;
- Where an activity contains an international airfare component, this should be costed as the applicable economy class excursion fare. The AIC will not reimburse applicants for additional expenses incurred because of late bookings or other problems requiring tickets to be paid for at a higher rate;
- AIC funding is normally awarded for a specific financial year. If funding cannot be taken up within the specified period it may be withdrawn. Any delay should be reported in good time with, if required, a request for extension to allow the AIC to consider the circumstances and to take any appropriate action; and
- Provision should be made in the application for publicity for and promotion of the proposed activity.

The Council generally meets three or four times each year to consider applications for AIC funding. It is the responsibility of funding applicants to ensure, by consultation with the AIC Secretariat, that applications are received by the council at least four weeks prior to the Council meeting at which they will be considered.

A summary of the principal AIC-funded activities, both Council-initiated and in response to funding applications from individuals and other organisations working to advance the Australia-India relationship, follows in respect of each Council funding program.

Performance

The five core program areas for the AIC during 2006-07 included: the arts (including literature and film); education; society/social (including health and sport); science, technology and environment (including heritage); and public policy (including media links).

Outcome 1: The Arts (including literature & film)

Objectives:

To encourage understanding between Australia and India by developing in each country an appreciation of the quality, diversity and sophistication of each other's arts and culture (including film and literature).

Key Achievements:

AusArts India: The AIC partnered the Australia International Cultural Council (AICC) for the second and final year of AusArts India. The two-year AusArts India program showcased the diversity of Australian culture through major events in India focusing on art exhibitions, design, film, literature and other art and cultural events across India.

Over 120,000 people attended Australian performances, film festivals and visual art exhibitions in eight of India's largest cities: New Delhi, Mumbai, Kolkata, Jaipur, Chennai, Goa, Pune and Bangalore. The program attracted consistently positive coverage in the national and regional press within India.

Artist in Residency Program: Managed by Asialink (Melbourne University) and part-funded by the AIC, the residency program enables Australian artists, writers and arts managers to work in India for up to four months. The opportunity contributes to developing networks, future exchanges and enhanced collaborations. The program also enhances the profile of Australia as a sophisticated, contemporary culture and encourages further intellectual and cultural exchanges.

The 5th Asia-Pacific Triennial of Contemporary Art: The AIC supported the participation of several Indian artists in the Queensland Art Gallery's flagship international contemporary art event, including Anish Kapoor, Nasreen Mohamedi, Bharti Kher, Jitish Kallat and filmmaker Kumar Shahani.

Potters at work in India.

Several small grants were also approved to showcase and promote Australian talent in India and to expose high quality Indian artists and arts managers to Australia. Such grants included: Sarah Mandie's participation in the Jaipur Festival; the participation of Indian writer Vikram Chandra at the Sydney Writers Festival; and the participation of Indian Arts expert Dr Alka Pande at RMIT's 'King Power: Designing Masculinities Symposium'.

A full list of grants is included in the program expenditure statement.

Outcome 2: Education

Objectives:

Increase knowledge and understanding in Australia of India, and in India of Australia, through the education sectors in each country. Forge and enhance relations between specialists in Australian Studies in both countries. Demonstrate Australian excellence in all fields of endeavour.

Key Achievements:

AIC Australian Studies Fellowships: The AIC initiated the Australian Studies Fellowships in 2003 to complement the Australian Government's commitment to strengthening educational links between Australia and India. The Fellowships are aimed at established Indian academics and postgraduate students from Indian tertiary institutions with a strong interest in Australian studies. They allow successful awardees to travel to Australia to undertake special projects drawing on the resources of Australian universities. The fellowships are administered by a consortium of universities, led by Curtin University and supported by Monash University, Queensland University, ANU, University of NSW and University of Adelaide. Up to six of these prestigious fellowships (maximum of ten weeks in Australia) have been awarded annually in areas such as Australian literature, politics and history, environment and health, tourism, film, media communication, gender issues, multiculturalism and indigenous issues. The research and development of contacts carried out by the awardees' help deepen India's understanding of Australia's vibrant and diverse society. The fellowships have added a significant new dimension to the education and research relationship between the two countries.

AIC Fellowships Alumni Meeting: In June 2007, the AIC supported a two day meeting of the AIC Fellowships alumni in New Delhi, organised by the Indian Association for the Study of Australia (IASA). The purpose of the meeting was to facilitate interaction amongst the alumni, harness the experiences of past recipients, and to further promote Australian studies in India.

AIC Fellowship Alumni Meeting.

Australia India Teacher Exchange: The Australia-India teacher exchange program, managed by the Asia Education Foundation and part-funded by the AIC, is designed to give Australian teachers and educational administrators a working familiarity with India while providing Indian teachers and administrators with a better understanding of Australia. The exchange also contributes to the long-term positioning of Australian education in India. A key outcome of the program is that both Indian and Australian teachers return to their home country with a greater interest and understanding of each others contemporary society and culture.

Several small grants were also given to assist Indian tertiary institutions that have Australian studies programs to purchase resource materials. One of the barriers to the study of Australia in India is the high cost and limited availability of Australian books, journals and other resource materials.

A full list of grants is included in the program expenditure statement.

Outcome 3: Society/social, including health and sport

Objectives:

Develop collaboration between Australia and India in public health and social issues, and to demonstrate to India the quality and innovation of Australian health services. Encourage relations between Australian and Indian sports people and organisations, and to demonstrate and promote Australian expertise in sports services and products.

Key Achievements:

HIV/AIDS Train the Trainer: The AIC continued its support for the HIV/AIDS 'Train the Trainer' program, undertaken in conjunction with the Burnet Institute and the Alfred Hospital. The program sends Australian doctors and other healthcare professionals to India to train their counterparts in best practice in HIV/AIDS clinical management, with a particular focus on the appropriate use of antiretroviral drugs. The program is delivered in partnership with the India-Australia Council, the Confederation of Indian Industry (CII) and the National AIDS Control Organisation (NACO) of India. Over 36 programs have been conducted since it commenced, training over 1,300 individuals. In 2006-07, training programs for doctors were conducted in Haldia, Chandigarh, Ahmedabad, Bhopal and Pune, and training programs for nurses and laboratory technicians were held in Cochin and Shimla.

Border-Gavaskar Cricket Scholarships: The Border-Gavaskar Cricket Scholarship program allows promising young Indian cricketers to receive at least four weeks of specialist coaching at the Cricket Centre of Excellence in Brisbane. This is funded in partnership with the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI), which also responsible for the selection of the cricketers. Many past recipients of the Scholarships have gone on to achieve selection in the international team. In 2006-07, Border-Gavaskar recipients were Piyush Chawla (all rounder), Cheteshwar Pujara (batsman), and Vijaykumar Yo Mahesh (bowler).

Disability Friendly Development: There are by some estimates almost 100 million Indians with a disability, but development programs can inadvertently exclude the disabled. This collaborative project between the Australian International Health Institute (AIHI) and the Christian Medical Association of India was aimed at skills building, resource development and professional interchange between Disabled Peoples' Organisations (DPOs) and NGOs working in development in both Australia and India, to assist both to understand and incorporate the needs and objectives of the other in designing their programs. AIC funding supported a forum in India for program managers from DPOs and NGOs, and the visit to Australia of a leading Indian disability advocate.

A full list of grants is included in the program expenditure statement.

Course participants on field visit to Delhi.

Outcome 4: Science, Technology & Environment

Objectives:

Demonstrate in India the quality, sophistication and diversity of Australian research and development, products and services and to promote professional and institutional links in these fields between Australia and India.

Key Achievements:

AIC Biomedical Fellowship: In 2003-04, the AIC instituted a Biotechnology/ Biomedical Fellowship on the recommendation of Sir Gustav Nossal. In 2006-07, the Fellowship exchange was between the University of Western Australia and the All India Institute of Medical Sciences in New Delhi. The exchange focussed on the interaction between HIV and tuberculosis (TB), which is the most commonly fatal secondary infection of HIV patients in the developing world. The objective of the exchange was to investigate the interaction between therapies for TB and for HIV on the natural immune responses to TB.

Global Communities for Sustainability: The AIC provided financial support to the Centre for Environment Education (CEE) for a pilot of an innovative program aimed at creating people-to-people linkages between school children in Australia and India, whilst raising awareness of a vital global issue. The 'Global Communities for Sustainability' program invited schools from New South Wales in Australia and from Gujarat in India to address a key sustainability issue affecting their community. Each school researched and developed an action plan on their chosen issue in consultation with a working group that included community stakeholders and a local council member. The participating schools in each country then selected the best presentation, and delegates from the winning schools in Australia and India participated in exchange visits.

A full list of grants is included in the program expenditure statement.

Outcome 5: Public Policy Activities, including media links

Objectives:

Strengthen links between key institutions in Australia and India, such as research and think tank institutes, professional organisations and appropriate non-government organisations, particularly in strategic, economic and international relations, with a view to promoting the long-term bilateral relationship. Increase public awareness and understanding of Australia in India, and of India in Australia, through the print media, radio and television. Promote the AIC's role in increasing the mutual awareness in Australia and India.

Key Achievements:

Professor Raja Mohan

Australia-India Strategic Lecture: In February 2007, the AIC in partnership with the Lowy Institute for International Policy hosted the inaugural Australia-India Strategic Lecture. The Lecture was delivered by Professor Raja Mohan, Strategic Affairs Editor of the Indian Express, and one of India's most influential commentators on India's foreign and strategic policy. Professor Mohan spoke on "India in East Asia". The Lecture will be an annual event featuring eminent Indians in the fields of regional and international politics and security.

2007 KR Narayanan Oration: The AIC continued its support of the KR Narayanan Oration, an annual lecture hosted by the Australia South Asia Research Centre at the Australian National University. The 11th Oration was delivered by Dr Rajendra Pachauri, Director-General of The Energy and Resources Institute (TERI) and Chairman of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), which went on to be awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in October 2007. Dr Pachauri's oration was entitled "Coping with Climate Change: Is Development in India and the World Sustainable?"

In addition to the Lectures, both Professor Mohan and Dr Pachauri undertook extended programs whilst in Australia, encompassing government, industry, academic and media appointments. These programs exponentially expand the people-to-people linkages made during the visit, and increase the possibility of future collaboration.

Australia-India Media Seminar: The AIC contributed funding to the second Australia-India Media Seminar, a public diplomacy initiative of the Australian High Commission in India. The seminar was held in Chennai in September 2006, and organised in close cooperation with one of India’s most respected newspaper groups, “The Hindu”. Participants included 18 senior media practitioners and academics from Australia, India, and from the Southeast and East Asia regions, including many of India’s most senior print and electronic media figures.

Australia-India Security Roundtable: The 5th Australia-India Security Roundtable was held in New Delhi on 5-6 December 2006. It brings together Australian and Indian foreign policy and security experts to exchange views on a range of bilateral and global issues of common concern, providing participants with an opportunity to explore avenues to expand the bilateral relationship. The 5th Roundtable was hosted by the Indian Council of World Affairs (ICWA), with Australian participants from the Australian Strategic Policy Institute (ASPI), the Australian National University and the University of Wollongong.

A full list of grants is included in the program expenditure statement.
