and disadvantaged

Memajukan kesehatan penduduk miskin dan tidak mampu di Indonesia

The Australian Government, through the aid program, is working with the Indonesian Government to improve the health of its people, particularly the poor and disadvantaged.

Australia supports the improvement of basic health services, focusing on maternal and neonatal health, HIV/AIDS, emerging infectious diseases and strengthening the health system.

Australia is committed to a long term partnership with the Indonesian Government and continuing its work within Indonesia's health sector.

Bantuan Australia

Sejak tahun 1987 Australia telah bekerjasama dengan Pemerintah Indonesia, di tingkat lokal dan nasional, untuk mengatasi kebutuhan kesehatan rakyat Indonesia.

Kemitraan Australia Indonesia senilai A$66 juta untuk Kesehatan Ibu dan Bayi di Indonesia Timur bertujuan untuk mengatasi tingginya angka kematian ibu dan bayi.

Setiap tahun, kemitraan ini telah memberikan manfaat kepada 40 000 wanita hamil dan 33 000 bayi.

Australia and Indonesia have been working together to tackle HIV for more than 15 years.

The A$100 million Australia Indonesia Partnership for HIV has helped 26 000 injecting drug users access clean needles, methadone treatment and other harm reduction programs. The partnership has resulted in better HIV responses in prisons, improved access to medicines for people living with HIV and an enhanced response to HIV in the Papua and West Papua provinces, where the HIV epidemic is around 18 times greater than the national average.

Australia has committed almost A$25 million to address the spread of emerging infectious diseases such as avian influenza and rabies.

Australia and Indonesia are working together to improve systems for detecting and controlling these diseases.

Australia has supported the Indonesian government to reduce human deaths from rabies in Bali by funding mass dog vaccination programs and a public awareness campaign. Animal disease surveillance and outbreak response systems have also been strengthened.

Memerangi penyakit-penyakit menular yang baru muncul

Australia telah berkomitmen hampir A$25 juta untuk mengatasi penyebaran penyakit-penyakit menular yang baru muncul seperti flu burung dan rabies.

Australia dan Indonesia bekerjasama meningkatkan sistem untuk mendeteksi dan mengendalikan penyakit-penyakit menular yang baru muncul.

Australia telah mendukung pemerintah Indonesia untuk mengurangi kematian manusia akibat rabies di Bali dengan mendanai program vaksinasi anjing secara massal dan kampanye kesadaran masyarakat. Pengawasan terhadap penyakit hewan dan sistem tanggap wabah juga telah diperkuat.
