Sustainable Development Goals

Australia and Indonesia are close neighbours, strategic partners and friends.

Australia and Indonesia have a long history of working together on shared priorities. We work in true partnership and have evolved the way we operate to keep pace with Indonesia's rapid development and growing leadership role in the region. Our locally-led approach builds on Indonesia's strengths and enables us to work together to address shared challenges.

Strategic direction

The overarching goal for the Australia-Indonesia development partnership is to promote Indonesia's prosperity, stability and resilience, and build strong links between our two countries.

The Australia–Indonesia Development Partnership Plan 2024–2028 (DPP) translates into action shared development priorities. It sets out three overarching objectives (sustainable and equitable economic transformation, climate resilient communities, and strong institutions), how we will work together to deliver shared outcomes, and how progress will be monitored.

Development initiatives under the DPP are designed to flexibly respond to new opportunities for collaboration that are of mutual interest. Our initiatives provide a positive mechanism to engage with the Government of Indonesia and a range of other stakeholders, including civil society organisations, academia and private sector to promote a participatory approach to sustainable development.

Program highlights
