As proud Patron of the New Colombo Plan, I am delighted to join you in celebrating the 2017 New Colombo Plan scholars.

The New Colombo Plan fosters the understanding and personal relationships that are so important for close and productive relations between people and nations. It is exciting to see a new generation of young Australians setting forth to engage with our neighbours and explore the immense opportunities that exist for friendship, collaboration and prosperity.

The scholars announced tonight will embark on journeys they will remember for the rest of their lives. The experiences they have and the friendships they make will shape them, and Australia's engagement with the Indo-Pacific region, for many years to come.

New Colombo Plan scholars are amongst Australia's best and brightest and I know they will do themselves and all Australians proud in their endeavours. I am confident that in the future we will be able to reflect on the significant contribution of the New Colombo Plan and our 2017 scholars to Australia's relationship with the world.

His Excellency General the Hon Sir Peter Cosgrove AK MC (Retd)
Governor-General of the Commonwealth of Australia
Patron of the New Colombo Plan

The New Colombo Plan
is transformational, deepening Australia's relationships in the region...

...at the individual level
and through expanding university, business and other stakeholder links.

From the Minister

It gives me great pleasure to announce Australia's New Colombo Plan scholars for 2017.

The New Colombo Plan scholarship program will grow in 2017 to support 105 scholars from across Australia to live, study and undertake work placements in the Indo-Pacific.

New Colombo Plan scholars are exceptional young Australians who have demonstrated strong academic performance, community leadership and a commitment to create bonds of friendship, understanding and opportunity between Australia and our neighbours.

I am delighted there has been continued strong demand to study across the Indo-Pacific and that in 2017 New Colombo Plan scholars will study in Papua New Guinea and Pakistan for the first time.

Our scholars will join more than 7,400 New Colombo Plan mobility grant recipients in 2017, taking the total number of students supported by the New Colombo Plan in its first four years to around 17,500.

This is a remarkable achievement that reflects the commitment of the Australian Government and our university and business partners to engage with the region and to invest in our youth.

I am pleased that so many friends of the program have joined us at this special celebration. I look forward to continuing to work with you to create new opportunities for young Australians to foster greater understanding and collaboration between Australia and the region.

On return to Australia, our scholars will join the vibrant and dynamic New Colombo Plan alumni community, which offers opportunities for alumni to stay connected to each other and the region. Over time the growing cohort of New Colombo Plan alumni will play an increasingly important role in Australia's relationships with our neighbours. They will become an influential and diverse network of Australians with direct experience in the Indo-Pacific, strong professional and personal networks in the region, and a driving force in Australia's future prosperity.

I congratulate all of the New Colombo Plan 2017 scholars and I look forward to following your achievements and contributions in the years ahead.
