

Australia

My name is Hudson, and I live in the Flinders Ranges in South Australia. I love it when frogs appear in the creek beds after it rains – my sister and I have fun digging to find them. However, it hasn't rained for a while, and I can see Mum and Dad are getting worried about the low water levels in the town dam. I wonder if ...

Cambodia

My name is Sothy, and I live in Cambodia. It's hot and rainy here, and the forests around my village are full of birds that live in the tall trees. I like drinking the cool, clear water from a spring that is not far from my home. The spring is hard for me to reach from my wheelchair, so I need help to get water. I wonder if ...

Fiji

My name is Litia, and I live near Suva, a beautiful city in Fiji. I love swimming with my friends in the river after school. However, our school rainwater tanks run out in the dry season, and we have to wait for the rain to fill them up again. That means we can't wash our hands and I get thirsty. I wonder if ...

Kiribati

My name is Teina, and I live in Kiribati, a small country where it's warm and the ocean is all around us. I love fishing with my grandfather and watching the sun set over the water. However, sometimes the salty sea gets into our wells and then we can't drink the water. I wonder if ...

---

Laos

My name is Dara, and I live in Laos. It's hot here most of the year and rains a lot during the wet season. I love watching the rice fields grow in the river wetlands and playing hide and seek in them. However, we don't have water in our own house, and we have to wait a long time to use the shared tap. I wonder if ...

Nauru

My name is Anitah, and I live on the island of Nauru, where it's sunny almost every day. I love finding sea creatures with my cousins on the beach.

However, our water must be brought in from other places because we don't have any freshwater sources. This is expensive and I know Mum and Dad worry about whether they will have enough money for water. I wonder if ...

Papua New Guinea

My name is Toma, and I live in Papua New Guinea, a place with big mountains, thick forests and lots of rain. I love watching birds take baths in the big leaves after the rain. However, our village doesn't have water pipes, so my mum has to carry water to our house. This takes a long time, and it is hard work. I wonder if ...

Philippines

My name is Bonita, and I live in Manila, the Philippines' capital city. I love it when we go to the harbour and look at all the big ships. However, in the dry season we sometimes run out of water because so many people need the water in our dam. Then we have to drink rainwater that hasn't been cleaned. I wonder if ...

Samoa

My name is Manaia, and I live in Samoa, a tropical island with lots of palm trees and warm ocean breezes. I love helping my mum to cook dinner. My job is to wash the fruit and vegetables. Sometimes our tap water isn't clean, so we have to be careful. I wonder if ...

---

Solomon Islands

My name is Sione, and I live in the Solomon Islands. There are many green islands and coral reefs here. I love being out in a canoe on the river with my uncle. However, a cyclone wrecked our town's water pipes so now our taps don't work and our toilets can't flush. I wonder if ...

---

Timor-Leste

My name is Angel, and I live in Timor-Leste, high up in the hills. I love playing in the rain with my cousins, especially when we make a water slide out of big leaves. However, even though it rains a lot, we don't have tanks in our village to store the water because it is hard to bring them here over all the hills. I wonder if ...

---

Tonga

My name is Kaloni, and I live in Tonga, a country made up of many islands in the middle of the Pacific Ocean. I love mucking around by the river after school while my mum works in the health clinic for mums and babies. However, I worry when I see rubbish in the river if this is affecting our water. I wonder if ...

Tuvalu

My name is Mele, and I live in Tuvalu, a tiny island country in the Pacific Ocean. I love helping my dad fix fishing nets. However, because we don't have rivers or lakes on our island, our water is very precious. I worry that my grandma shares all her water with me when she needs to drink too! I wonder if ...
